ANNEX

Personal Information Confirmation

Personal Information Protection Act (PIPA)

PIPA applies broadly to "personal information" processed by any entity deemed to be a "handler" of personal information." PIPA defines "personal information" as any information from which, by itself or combined with other information, an individual can be identified, whether from the individual's name, identification number, image or other attributes. A "handler" of personal information is any entity, company, government organization, individual or other person that, directly or through a third party, handles personal information for business purposes. PIPA applies to both electronically and manually recorded information.

Personal Information Stored at the ECCK

At the time of application for General Membership / Committee Membership, the ECCK asks to provide certain personal information, such as name, landline telephone, mobile phone number, and e-mail address.

The information is primarily used by the ECCK for distributing information relevant to the ECCK, its committees and its forums. The information is further used to forward certain promotional offers by business service providers.

Furthermore, upon agreement, this PIPA will be valid for all existing and future members listed under the member company.
