[FAQ] Individuals who are not required for K-ETA

Q. I am a multiple citizenship holder holding both Korean passport and U.S. passport. Do I need to apply for K-ETA?

In principle, the multiple citizenship holders need to present their Korean passports for immigration inspection when they enter or exit the Republic of Korea. If so, they do not need to apply for K-ETA.

A. And at the airline counter, you need to present both of the passports to get your boarding pass. However, the airline might reject to issue the boarding pass for not having valid K-ETA if there is any discrepancy in personal information written on the passport bio page (such as name or date of birth) between Korean passport and U.S. passport or for any other reasons. So, please check this matter with the airline in advance.

If you do not have a valid Korean passport, please apply for or renew your passport at a diplomatic mission of the Republic of Korea and enter the country with it. However, if you are not able to get it due to inevitable situations such as COVID-19, you need to apply for K-ETA and enter the country with your U.S. passport.
